Learning outcomes: After completing the seminar, students will be able to recognize scientific research, artistic and aesthetic research, their specific procedures and methods as they have been gradually shaped from the 1960s to the present. They will be familiar with the basic concepts and be able to apply them in discussion and production. At the same time, they will be able to use them critically in diverse contexts of cultural and artistic life.
Class syllabus: Historical transformations of the relationship between science and art. Mutual resonances and dissonances of science and art in the 20th century: the emergence of experimental, conceptual, serial and performative art and metaphoricity, intuition and performativity in scientific thought. The notion of method in science and art. Concrete and abstract concepts. The beginnings of discussions of artistic research in philosophy, aesthetics and art history as a problem of interdisciplinary research.

Course ID: KTDU/Uvt.vd2/22		Course title: Artistic Research - Theory II.
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 3 per level/semester: 36 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 2.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Over the course of the semester, students will be graded 25% for input and presentations, 25% for participation in discussion, and 50% (A-FX) for submission of the final presentation. The seminar focuses on critical reading and collaborative discussion to clarify the basic concepts, philosophical, aesthetic, and art historical contexts of art research
Learning outcomes: By completing the course, the students will acquire revised and expanded forms of knowledge of science on the one hand and art and artistic practices on the other. They will be able to distinguish between artistic production in general, artistic research and scientific research. They will be able to justify the specificity of artistic research and respond critically to the diverse forms of scientism and pan-art-researchism in art theory and practice. They will acquire the ability to generalise these critical insights and skills and transfer them creatively to life situations and cultural and artistic life.
Class syllabus: Differentiation lines between artistic research or arts-based-research or research in the arts, but also in other branching lines and under other labels such as la recherche-cr�ation or research by design, performative research, practice-based research or practice-led research and finally practice as research or the hybrid research in and through art practice. Forms of scientism, pan-art-researchism and praxis (art industry and other sectors).

Learning outcomes: After the completion of the seminar, students and teachers will be able to build a common critical categorical apparatus of artistic research, to characterize its specific procedures and methods, and finally its inherent evaluation criteria. These are the basic prerequisites for the construction of a model of artistic research and they will be able to subject it to the opprobrium of the scientific and artistic community. They will be able to defend the model of artistic research in scientific and artistic forums and seek possible transfers to the cultural and artistic field.
Class syllabus: he categorical apparatus of artistic and scientific research. Building a theory of artistic research. Critique of methodological anarchism and a priori methodologism. The general and the unique in artistic research. The rational and the empirical in artistic research. Definitional procedures in artistic and scientific research.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2022/2023
University: Academy of Fine Arts and Design Bratislava
Faculty:
Course ID: KTDU/Avhe.d3/20	Course title: Autonomous versus Heteronomous in Art I.
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 24 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 4
Recommended semester: 3.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Attendance of a minimum of 75% unless otherwise specified by the teacher in accordance with the course syllabus. 40% active participation in seminars, 40% report / seminar paper, 20% discussion of the report / seminar paper defense. Active participation in seminar discussions, reading and interpretation of selected texts is a prerequisite for graduation. The final essay on the assigned topic is part of the assesment and completion of the study.
Learning outcomes: The seminar focuses on reading and analyzing selected texts by aestheticians, philosophers, theorists and critics of 20th and early 21st century art. Thematically, the seminar focuses on the relationship between autonomist and heteronomist theories of art and aesthetics and their mutual intersections. The content of the seminar tends towards a preference for such philosophical, aesthetic, art-historical, art-theoretical or art-critical conceptions reflecting on and interpreting artistic practice, that seeks to eliminate this dichotomy, dominant for modern art and productive for art reflection, between internally artistic problems, forces, "rules" or "laws" and forces, circumstances or conditions external to art (historical, cultural, techonological, social, economic, political, etc.), but which strongly model and shape artistic practice. Despite the historical productivity of this theoretical antinomy, we are convinced that it is an aesthetic-theoretical construct that is unsustainable in the long run, and through the analysis of historical attempts to reinterpret, revise and rearticulate it, as well as through directing the attention and sensitivity of graduate students to this problem in their own scholarly and artistic practice, it is possible to seek and discuss a different form of reflection on the interplay between the intrinsically artistic-autonomous and the mini-artistic-heteronomous forces shaping past and present forms of art and its reflection. The seminar is discursive, theoretical, and primarily works in the form of close reading, critical commenting and discursive verification of aesthetic and philosophical texts, but the focus of the seminar crucially presupposes and requires direct confrontation with the practical experience of students who are active visual artists and who carry out their own artistic research (often in an intuitive and unreflected way). The aim is to explore and approach the possibilities of articulating the phenomenon of the interaction of heteronomous and utonomous forces and the transformation of non-artistic circumstances into artistic means and vice versa The graduate of the course should acquire an elementary conceptual equipment, through which he would be able to reflect and articulate his own artistic thinking and artistic research as a specific, autonomous and full-fledged type of thinking, so that the visual arts do not have to be legitimized by non-artistic (e.g. social, political, ecological or political-economic) narratives (as has become the blind practice of much of the contemporary reflection and discursivity surrounding the visual arts), but at the same time maintain and develop this very important possibility through artistic means over a long period of time.

Class syllabus:

1. Introduction: the problem of atomistic versus heteronomous approaches in history, theory, criticism, philosophy of art, aesthetics and artistic practice. Discussion. (2 hours)
2. Attempt to articulate and solve the problem in the environment of Czechoslovak Structuralism I: Jan Mukařovský - Aesthetic Function, Norm and Value as Social Fact Discussion. (2 hours)
3. Attempt at articulation and problem solving in the environment of Czechoslovak Structuralism II: Jan Mukařovský - Intentionality and non-intentionality in art. Discussion. (2 hours)
4. Attempt at articulation and problem solving in the environment of Czechoslovak Structuralism III: Jan Mukařovský - Individuum in art. Discussion. (2 hours)
5. Attempt at articulation and problem solving in the environment of Czechoslovak Structuralism IV: Milan Jankovič - Inspiration by Involuntariness. Discussion. (2 hours)
6. Attempt at articulation and solution of the problem in the environment of Czechoslovak structuralism V: Oskár Čepan - Literature - system and history. Discussion. (2 hours)
7. Attempt at articulation and solution of the problem in the environment of Czechoslovak Structuralism VI: Oskár Čepan - The Painter between Eros and Thanatos. Transformations of Fil's artistic gesture. Discussion. (2 hours)
8. An attempt to articulate and solve the problem in the early methodological works of M. M. Bakhtin: M. M. Bakhtin - Formal Method in Literary Science. Discussion. (2 hours)
9. Attempt at articulation and problem solving in the sociology of art by P. P. Bourdieu - Historical genesis of pure aesthetics. Discussion. (2 hours)
10. Attempt at articulation and problem solving in the art historical thought of M. Baxandall: M. Baxandall - Benjamin Baker's Forth Bridge Historical Object; Focused Visual Interest - Kahnweiler's Portrait of Pablo Pacasso. Discussion. (2 hours)
11. Attempt to articulate and solve a problem in K's conception of critical architecture. M. Heys: K. Between culture and form. Discussion (2 hours)
12. Attempt to articulate and solve the problem in M. Imdahl's conception of the iconic: M. Imdahl - Iconography, Iconology and Iconics. Discussion. (2 hours)

Academic year: 2022/2023
University: Academy of Fine Arts and Design Bratislava

Course ID: KTDU/Pife.m24/19		Course title: Big names and ideas of French Aesthetics in the last two decades
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 24 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 2
Recommended semester: 2., 4.
Educational level: II., III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: - active participation in the seminar (maximum number of absences 3) - passing the final written test or oral exam
Learning outcomes: Familiarization of students with current intellectual developments in Francophone aesthetics, philosophy and art theory, with an enhanced emphasis on publications published in the last 5 years. Classes will provide students with unfamiliar and new topics, issues, and directions.
Class syllabus: The one-semester course involves the introduction of more than a dozen figures in contemporary French aesthetics, generally professors of aesthetics and art theory at Paris I, IV and X Universities and EHESS, as well as newly emeritus professors and more prominent associate professors (publications from 1996-2016). It will be a presentation of aesthetics as it is currently reflected and taught in the French environment, and thus a translation into the actuality of theoretical-aesthetic developments in another cultural field. On the contrary, it will not be a presentation of figures who have already become authorities on a world scale, e.g. Didi-Huberman, etc., who are already somewhat known and present in our environment. Formally, it would be a seminar using the authors' own translations of selected chapters of the works of the presented authors.

Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: per level/semester: 24s Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester: 2.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: A colloquium presentation combined with discussion for the Fine Arts and History and Theory of Art and Architecture programs, held once per semester according to the academic calendar in the summer semester of the first year. Students present the development of their theoretical and practical doctoral theses to members of the heads of departments , supervising faculty, dissertation advisors, and professionals from practice and academia. This is followed by a joint interdisciplinary critical discussion of each project presented. The evaluation of the presentation and discussion (passed - failed).
Learning outcomes: After the completion of the colloquium, students will be able to present, characterize, argue, critically discuss and reflect on partial results of their own and their colleagues' work in progress in a collaborative debate in English. In discussion with the fellow PhD students, teachers and invited guests, they will acquire the skills and abilities to critically examine their own ways of thinking and research. They will have the opportunity to incorporate interdisciplinary critical comments into the work in progress, which is one of the prerequisites for the successful progression and completion of the doctoral thesis. They will also develop their presentation and discussion skills in a foreign language.
Class syllabus: The students independently present (within a set time limit) partial results of doctoral research and creation of works. Afterwards, a joint discussion takes place. All participants of the colloquium, including the PhD students, discuss.
Recommended literature: Literature that emerges in the discussion and after the colloquium the PhD could be included in students' own research and creation of works.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2022/2023
University: Academy of Fine Arts and Design Bratislava
Faculty:
Course ID: KTDU/Drkt.d1/22	Course title: Doctoral Consultations I.
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 3 per level/semester: 36 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Regular and systematic consulting of doctoral work and artistic research as well as connecting the context of practical work with theoretical and art-historical reflection. Independent and conceptual work with the literature and consistent gradual finalization of the doctoral thesis including the evaluation of the acquired knowledge and critical, author's revision of the topic.
Learning outcomes: By completing the subject, the doctoral student acquires the ability to think critically, systematically work with literature, discuss topics and evaluate his own work as well as broader contexts within the field of knowledge to which the doctoral thesis is devoted.
Class syllabus: Individual according to the topic of the doctoral thesis. In general, however, the curriculum primarily includes personal consultations and discussions with the doctoral student on topics defined by his work in the field of theory or the theory and practical part of the work. If it is a visual arts study program, the subject understands both parts of the dissertation in joint cooperation (trainer and consultant trainer). With regard to artistic research, it aims at the doctoral student's ability to work with literature as well as independently formulate their own critical opinions. Taking into account the practical part of the work, the subject is aimed at stimulating a creative and clearly formulated output by the author, with the ability of the doctoral student to defend it argumentatively.
Recommended literature: Individual, according to the topic of the doctoral (dissertation) work, the basic literature is defined in the Individual Study Plan of the doctoral student.

Faculty:
Course ID: KTDU/Vpvs.d2/22	Course title: General Problems of Visual Cultural Institutions II.
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 24 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 2.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Prerequisites for completing the course are: participation in discussions in the lectures (20 points), activity in seminars (20 points), collective close-reading of the text of the selected publication (20 points), exam in the form of a final semester test (40 points). Attendance (minimum 85%) is also a prerequisite for the course. At least 75 points are required for an A grade, at least 70 points for a B grade, at least 65 points for a C grade, at least 60 points for a D grade, and at least 55 points for an E grade. Credits will not be awarded to a student who scores less than 12 points on any of the written examinations
Learning outcomes: The student should acquire a comprehensive general idea and knowledge of the field of visual culture, be able to point out the internal connections between visual art and other areas of culture and social life that work with visual images (film, ideological propaganda, advertising, mass media, subcultural genres, etc.), identify their semantic and formal affinities. Approach the contemporary discourse touching upon the problems of presentation of artworks, questions of authorship, individual identity, models of reception of visual works, transformations in the understanding of the relationship between the original and the copy, etc.
Class syllabus: Visual Cultural Studies I focuses on 12 selected topics related to the relationship of visual art and visual imagery to important social and institutional discourses. The lectures are in the form of a power-point presentation and the seminar is designed in their structure to communicate to the PhD students the contemporary discourse touching upon the problems of the presentation of works of art, questions of authorship, individual identity, models of reception of the visual work, transformations in the understanding of the relationship between the original and the copy, etc. The seminars that are linked to the lecture topic are then structured in such a way that the student is directly and actively involved in the collective reading and commenting on the selected publication and in the discussions on it. Presentations of their own choice on a relevant topic by individual students form an important part of the seminar each time.

The condition for passing the course is active participation in the course of at least 75% and successful. Attendance at the lecture is compulsory. Three excused absences per semester.
Learning outcomes: The aim of the course is to prepare students for successful completion of the Master's degree. final state examination in design theory and history. The third semester course focuses on introducing students to key theories and concepts about design during the 20th and 21st centuries and provides a platform for the acquisition of skills in critical thinking, professional analysis and interpretation. Students gain a basic overview of the theoretical thinking that accompanies design work through texts by leading contemporary designers/years and representatives of various disciplines, and are encouraged to confront theories with practice in the field. Within the themes, design is reflected in multiple positions of its manifestations and in the broader context of applied art and material culture. The seminar part of the course is conceived as a training in working with text. The students analyze texts (primary sources) and interpret them in the context of contemporary events in the sphere of design and culture in a joint discussion. Competences: the ability to reflect on the broader context of design production in their own design work, as well as the ability to defend their own creative starting points and principles.
Class syllabus: 1. Design in the Museum Museum presentations and interpretations of artefacts of material culture - from design as a functional and aesthetic object to design as a mediator of social relations. Significant institutional collections of design and their historical context. The design museum as an arbiter of good taste? Permanent exhibitions of design, possibilities of interventions in permanent exhibitions. 2. On the issues of exhibiting applied art/design

Curating applied art and design - contemporary approaches, possibilities and limits of gallery presentation (selected examples). "Design of exhibitions" as a separate category - artistic and spatial design, input of new media, virtual presentations, communication with the viewer.

3. The phenomenon of garbage design

Functionality as a provisionality - the cycle of things (J. Michl). Ecology of necessity. Recycling in design and the DIY phenomenon. Waste as luxury. Waste studies as a new field of research. Ecology and sustainable development - what can design do? Exhibition. (2021)

4. Phenomena of returns: 'retro' in contemporary design.

Between memory and history, collective identification, (n)ostalgia, conscious use (misuse?) of retro elements in design, exhibitions: Husák's 3+1. Housing Culture 70. Years. Old Beginning, New End, Flowers in the Ashtray, o. z. Ostblok and others.

5. Gender stereotypes in clothing design: the history of women's trousers.

History of Western fashion versus local context, examples from art and design history.

6. Reflection of fashion trends through fashion periodicals.

The form and content of magazines from the Baroque to the 20th century, the relationship between graphics and fashion. The personalities and technologies involved in the transformation of this essential mediator of fashion trends.

7. Democratisation in fashion: the emergence of ready-to-wear and its role in the history of dress.

The new rules of clothing design in socialist Czechoslovakia.

8. De-formation of the body.

De-shaping of the body through various devices. Anatomical deformation of the body, hygienic, ethical and magical protection of the body. Dematerialisation of the body with textiles.

9. "Lost in the subway".

The representative function of textiles. Textiles in public space. Clothing as a status sign. Ceremonial textiles in the past.

10. Private space shaped by textiles.

Textiles in the context of architecture. The intimacy of clothing: linen, gifts of love, sexuality.

11. From plane to volume.

The evolution of the surface representation of textiles. "Peeling away the walls" - tapestry and fabric as sculpture, fiber art. "Blurring the boundaries" - new themes and media: installation, happening, land art, conceptualism. Clothing as a medium of creation: the maker beyond couture and design.

12. Between an artisan and maker.

An outline of the relationship between designer and maker. Individualisation in textile and clothing creation. Examples from the past: tapestries, embroidered paintings, garments, couture models, free author garments.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2022/2023
University: Academy of Fine Arts and Design Bratislava
Faculty:
Course ID: KTDU/Mpdp.vd1/22	Course title: Methodology of Artistic Work
Educational activities: Type of activities: Seminar Number of hours: per week: 2 per level/semester: 24 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 1.
Educational level: III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Attendance of a minimum of 75% unless otherwise specified by the teacher in accordance with the course syllabus. 40% active participation in seminars, 40% report / seminar paper, 20% discussion of the report / seminar paper defense. Active participation in seminar discussions, reading and interpretation of selected texts is a prerequisite for graduation. The final essay on the assigned topic is part of the assesment and completion of the study.
Learning outcomes: The seminar is conceived as a propedeutic introduction to practical scientific and theoretical-artistic research. Its target group is mixed and in the combination of peer discussions the seminar concept foresees the participation of PhD students in the theory and history of art and architecture as well as PhD students studying in the fine arts programme. The content of the seminar is designed to be a qualified preparation for the discursive articulation and textual formulation of the problem, process and results of scientific and artistic research in the field of visual art and its reflection. One of the focal points of the seminar's discourse is the precise and crisp articulation of a theoretical and/ or artistic research problem, which the doctoral student must carry out well in advance during the first semester of study. Another focal point is centered on the articulation of the stylistic and genre possibilities of the text of the theoretical or artistic problem. In principle, the University does not limit the stylistic norms or genre attributes of the text of the doctoral written thesis, but deliberately opens up the space of possibilities so that each doctoral student can adapt this text into a form that best suits the needs of the research, while at the same time fostering an active creative approach to writing to the maximum extent possible. On the other hand, however, what is required is the correctness of the final document, which is actually a protocol of the research carried out and also a document of the paths of artistic thinking and reflection taken. Therefore, the seminar is also a propedeutic of formal correctness and the required formalities of a theoretical dissertation or the written part of a dissertation. The seminar work includes a common reading and analysis of selected texts of both good and unsatisfactory thesis and dissertation works realized in the environment of the Academy of Fine Arts and Design in Bratislava.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Academic year: 2022/2023
University: Academy of Fine Arts and Design Bratislava
Faculty:
Course ID: KTDU/Ssem.m1/20	Course title: Schools and directions of aesthetic thinking I.
Educational activities: Type of activities: Lecture / Seminar Number of hours: per week: 1 / 1 per level/semester: 12 / 12 Form of the course: present
Number of credits: 3
Recommended semester: 3.
Educational level: II., III.
Prerequisites:
Course requirements: Participation in in the course at least 75% unless the teacher determines otherwise in accordance with the study regulations. 40% active participation in seminars, 40% report / seminar paper, 20% discussion of the report / seminar paper defense. Active participation in seminar discussions, reading and interpretation of selected texts is a prerequisite for graduation. The final essay on the assigned topic is part of the evaluation and completion of the study.
Learning outcomes: The seminar focuses on reading and analysing selected texts by aestheticians, philosophers, theoreticians and art critics from the second half of the 20th century and the beginning of the 21st century. Thematically, the seminar focuses on issues related to the relations of artistic research, the epistemology of the aesthetic, and the epistemology of the artist. Part of the work in the seminars is a theoretical, thought-provoking exploration of the interrelationships between artistic research, the field of so-called "artistic research", i.e. thinking realized in and through artistic media, but also thinking that is realized in non-artistic media - philosophical and scientific thinking and research. The seminar is discursive, theoretical, and primarily works in the form of close reading, critical commenting and discursive verification of aesthetic and philosophical texts, but the focus of the seminar crucially presupposes and requires a direct confrontation with the practical experience of students who are active visual artists and who carry out their own artistic research (often in an intuitive and unreflected way). The aim is to explore and approach the possibilities of articulating the phenomenon of thinking that is other than conceptual thinking, that is, thinking that happens through working with the visual medium and through the perception of the artwork. The seminar focuses on reading and analyzing texts, on discussion and polemics related to the chosen topics. The course Schools and Directions of Aesthetic Thought - Artistic and Scientific Research I concerts on Dieter Mersch's text Epistemology of the Aesthetic (2015) and the whole tangle of problems and concepts that this fundamental attempt to reflect on the phenomenon of cognition through art entails. The graduate of the course should acquire an elementary conceptual equipment through which he/she would be able to reflect and articulate his/her own artistic thinking and artistic research as a specific, autonomous and full-fledged type of thinking.

Class syllabus:

1. Introduction: the problem of artistic research, cognition through the aesthetic and the artistic, Dieter Mersch and his text Epistemology of the Aesthetic. Discussion. (2 hours)
- 2: Artistic research and research in the field of the aesthetic. Discussion. (4 hours)
3. A brief history of truth in art and modern aesthetic thought. Discussion. (6 hours)
4. Reflexive epistemologies of art. Discussion. (6 hours)
5. Epistemic practices of art. Discussion. (6 hours)
